Scientific Review Advisory Committee (SRAC)

Expressions of Interest (EOI) are sought from suitably qualified individuals for membership of the ACM Scientific Review & Advisory Committee (SRAC).

SRAC Purpose
There are ongoing challenges to midwifery practice in Australia requiring the active involvement of the Australian College of Midwives (ACM). The Scientific Review and Advisory Committee (SRAC) will provide advice and make recommendations to ACM on scientific matters that impact on midwifery practice, and guide the scientific programs of ACM national conferences.

The role of the Committee is to:
- Provide expert advice to ACM (including the Board) via the Chief Executive Officer (CEO) on scientific matters related to practice and the midwifery profession.
- Provide expert advice and support to the CEO on ways in which to utilise national/international policies and scientific developments to assist with the ongoing development of research-based midwifery practice in Australia.
- Make recommendations about ways in which ACM can effectively contribute to the ongoing development of research-based midwifery practice in Australia.
- Undertake specified tasks or projects as requested by the CEO from time to time, such as drafting ACM policies on scientific matters and research-based practice.
- Represent ACM as either individuals or as a group when requested to do so by the CEO in scientific matters and as resources permit.
- Provide advice on the instructions and call for submission of abstracts and the scoring system developed to assess submitted abstracts for national conferences.
- Participate in peer review of abstracts for national conferences.
- Provide advice on the program planning for national conferences.
- Provide input to the CEO on the selection of experts to represent ACM on national/international committees relating to scientific matters as necessary.
- Liaise with any other ACM Advisory Committee through the Chair as matters arise.
- Carry out the responsibilities/role in a culturally-safe manner, demonstrating respect and understanding of the wide variety of cultural beliefs and

Appointment
As per the TOR, the appointment is for a period of 3 years.

Members will need to undertake a membership renewal EOI process at the end of their first term, thus reconfirming their commitment to the Committee and the Committee obligations. Re-appointment to the Committee will be dependent on a successful EOI being completed, as well as, evidence being noted of active participation in Committee meetings and project work over the period of the previous appointment.

Meetings
The SRAC meets biannually by Zoom or teleconference however a majority of work is undertaken by email.

Scientific Review Advisory Committee (SRAC)

Names and profiles of members will be communicated to ACM members via e-bulletin, website and social media. This is to ensure transparency of governance and inform members of ACM activity.

Expectations

- Members should be prepared to attend all scheduled meetings for the Committee, with a minimum of 50% attendance per year to maintain Committee membership;
- Members should be prepared to actively participate in all dialogue that occurs “out of session” pertaining to Committee business, which may on occasion require a quick response. E.g. regularly check email correspondence and promptly respond to requests, even if this is to say “I’m sorry I can’t contribute!”. This information will inform decisions related to continued membership of the committee;
- In busy periods you may anticipate the need to dedicate approximately 1-2 hours per week to the committee;
- Contribute to or lead committee work, which may include providing opinions on courses or web pages, commenting on documents, contributing to submissions, writing for the Australian Midwifery News, etc.

What’s in it for you?

- You will receive a letter of acknowledgement of your appointment to the ACM SRAC which can be used in your professional portfolio;
- You can add this role to your CV as evidence of your professional engagement and personal/professional development;
- You can log all hours that you undertake attending meetings or addressing work for the SRAC in your professional portfolio as CPD hours;
- You will have access to resources and engagement with fellow health professionals;
- You will have the opportunity to help guide developments and changes;
- You will gain experience in working on a Committee and there may be opportunities to represent the ACM at local or national events;
- You will build up your personal/professional network by working with your midwifery peers.

Selection Criteria

The SRAC is a skills-based committee with appointments made against the following criteria:

- Current financial member of the ACM.
- Have registration as a midwife with the NMBA and be able to meet recency of practice requirements.
- Possess higher research degree qualifications (research masters or doctorate)
- Have experience in, or a capacity to, represent midwives with regards to evidence-based midwifery practice and research.
- Have a well-developed capacity to analyse research evidence and other sources of information relating to evidence-based midwifery.
- Be able to access conference abstracts and review through an online process. Experience with the process of ‘reviewing’ would be desirable but not essential
- Have email access.
- Have a willingness to donate time and expertise to the scheduled meetings and activities undertaken by the committee on behalf of the College as outlined in the Committee’s TOR.
